Foreword

As we, the students of Frederick face the trials and tribulations of being the "Pioneers of the New Frontier" we are establishing the traditions and customs for the future classes. We are confronted by this great challenge and responsibility. Frederick has much to offer; we must prepare to contribute all our efforts and devotion to the success of this great venture. Therefore, we will have to establish and maintain one of the finest reputations of any college in Virginia. Without such a reputation we can not be proud of all that this college represents. Having been given the rare and exciting opportunity to build a college, we should wholeheartedly fulfill our responsibilities and strive for higher goals.

We dedicate

In the transition of a junior college to a four-year college status, there are many areas in which an institution must expand. In this expansion many people play an important role. The same people must set high goals and standards for the students.

Frederick is fortunate in having a person with such goals and standards. His contributions are numerous and varied. Because of his consecration and hard work, we dedicate this, the 1962 Driftwood, to our president, WILLARD J. BLANCHARD.

Frederick College
Portsmouth, Virginia

On September 8, 1958 Frederick College was born and those who had labored for this day looked forward to a great future. On September 12, 1961, Frederick College had a re-birth which was, in the short span of three years, beyond the wildest dreams of those who had planned and worked for its creation. On this later date, Frederick moved from the City of Portsmouth to a beautiful eight hundred acre site overlooking Hampton Roads. Few schools, if any, have opened with the number of students, the physical plant, and the financial resources which Frederick possess.

The founders of the school have only one purpose in mind—that of being able to render a service to worthy young men and women. Frederick College can look back over its previous history with some degree of pride as it moved from a Junior College to a Senior institution. While Frederick has no plans to become the largest institution in Virginia, it does have definite plans to become one of the finest. With the support of the Beazley Foundation, the dedication of its teachers, and with the admission of worthy young men and young women, Frederick College looks to the future with great expectations.

One of the most vital organizations on the Frederick campus is the Student Government Association which carries out all the functions of the student government. It has established and maintained the Code of Honor of Frederick College and has set forth many goals to be attained, not only by the student government, but also by the student body. Among these goals are the establishment of a strong and uniform student government, a fine reputation for this college, and progress through great achievements. Through the efforts of the Student Government Association and the student body Frederick College will be benefited now as well as in the future.

Lion's Track

Through the efforts of the newspaper staff, we are presented with an excellent example of an informative and entertaining college newspaper, "The Lion's Track", which is edited and published by a very capable and well-trained staff. Many long hours of toil and strife were necessary in order to produce this newspaper of which we can all be proud.

The Coral Reading Choir is a unit of the Speech and Dramatic Arts Department; it affords the student an additional means of training for more effective speech patterns and vocal control as well as a chance to correct minor faults in diction and pronunciation and to improve on the clarity of his speech. In addition, through the study of various types of literature adaptable to Reading Choir technique the student develops a keen sense of understanding and appreciation of literature forms.
